Hens may lay several eggs at one time. A hen warms the eggs by sitting on them until they hatch into chicks. Below are the stages on how the foetus in an egg becomes a chick.

1

A chick starts as a tiny dot in the yolk that later becomes a foetus. The yolk provides food for the foetus.

2

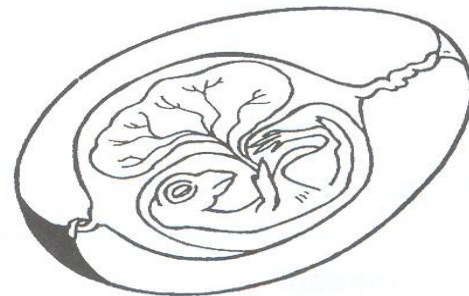

After five days, the foetus develops a head and a backbone.

4

When the foetus is fully grown, it fills the shell. It pecks a hole on the blunt end of the egg shell and struggles out.

3

Three weeks later, a beak, eyes and feet are formed. Then, its feathers start to grow.

5

The chick has soft feathers and its eyes are open.
